Dead.

The Norwich and Westerly Traction company, the Westerly and Connecticut Railway company, the Ashaway and Westerly Railway company, the Groton and Stonington Street Railway company are now in consolidated headquarters in the Old Colony building in Fogwell street. General Manager Robert W. Perkins of Norwich has issued orders of public interest. Thomas W. Riley, the competent superintendent for years of the Groton and Stonington company, has been appointed superintendent of transportation, and will be in full charge of the passenger and freight business.

Stephen J. Kehoe, superintendent of the Norwich and Westerly Traction company, the Ashaway and Westerly Railway company, the Groton and Stonington Street Railway company, and the Eastern Connecticut Traction company, will be in charge of the power-houses and substations. James H. McKnight will be in charge of the system. Charles Elliott, transferred from Fallville, will be general dispatcher, with office in general headquarters.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Washington County Agricultural society was held at the fair grounds in West Kingston Friday afternoon, when it was voted that the 1913 fair be held September 16, 17, 18 and 19. William P. Sanderson of Westerly was elected to the committee on races, and the other members are John H. Cranston, A. Eugene Wilcox, Thomas H. Barker and George L. Salisbury. The members elected as the fair committee are William H. Arnold, George C. Cross, John G. Clarke and Thomas H. Barker.

Philip A. Money was appointed general superintendent of the fair. A committee was appointed to make changes in regard to the premium lists, and this committee will report to the executive committee. The same superintendents of departments who served at the last fair were reappointed with the exception of Mrs. Edward Tucker, who had charge of the fancy work. Miss Mamie Cottrell was appointed to succeed Mrs. Tucker.

THE GARMENT SECTION
Good Value

Good value—these words when properly used mean much. We are going to make no "far-fetched" claims for the garments with which our ready-to-wear section is filled, but they are "good-value." In style, material, workmanship and general attractiveness we guarantee that they will give satisfaction. They are "sincerity" garments whose quality and appearance will speak for themselves.

GIRLS' COATS

Distinctive models for the girl from 6 to 14 years of age. The colorings are all new and the designs are snappy and up-to-date. The fashionable collars this year may be worn open, with a wide lapel effect or be buttoned up snugly around the neck. Some of these coats have been priced as high as $9.98.

Louis Henry Eddy, who retired from the management of the Dixon house October 1st, died Saturday evening at his home in High street from the effects of an apoplectic shock sustained a week ago. Mr. Eddy was the son of Eliza and Angie W. Eddy and was born in Centerville, R. I., 38 years ago, coming to Westerly with his parents when four months old. He was educated in the schools of Westerly and was graduated from the Westerly High school with the class of 1897. He played center in the famous football team representing that school which defeated the Brown university and other college teams. He was strong and husky, and at the time of his death was the largest man in Westerly.

After leaving the High school Mr. Eddy was graduated from the Philadelphia Textile school, after which he traveled and represented dyeing establishments of New York and Boston. Returning to Westerly, he engaged as clerk in the Dixon house under the management of J. H. Star, and succeeded to the management and lease of the hotel. Mr. Eddy was a member of Narragansett lodge, I. O. O. F., and of the Elks lodge, and was secretary for six years, and during that time was absent but from only one meeting. Mr. Eddy is survived by his parents and a sister.

There was a large attendance of people of Westerly and vicinity in Westerly Opera house Sunday afternoon at the service in memory of George H. Utter, member of congress and ex-governor of Rhode Island, who died a week ago. The exercises opened with the singing of the Twenty-third Psalm by the Seventh Day Baptist church choir and choir, followed by the recital of the Lord's prayer. William H. Browning rendered a baritone solo, and then Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, reviewed Mr. Utter's service to the church. He was followed by Samuel H. Davis, a former pastor, who spoke of Mr. Utter's service to the state and nation. Miss Katherine Price sang a soprano solo, and the exercises closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The addresses, while thoroughly eulogistic, by no means overestimated the virtues of the gifted orator, statesman, charitable and true Christian gentleman. The several Seventh Day Baptist churches were closed during the service in respect to the memory of Mr. Utter.

Albert Burlingame Collins, 73, died Saturday evening at his home in Pleasant street, Westerly, from chronic Bright's disease. Though in failing health for several years, Mr. Collins was about the streets and attended to his business until a few weeks ago. Mr. Collins was born in North Stonington, Conn., the son of Amos and Sarah Burlingame Collins, who was Sarah Burlingame Collins, also died in Westerly.

Albert B. Collins was educated in the schools of Westerly, and at the age of 14 he studied in office of Dr. William Wilbur for three years in preparation as a pharmacist. In 1890 Mr. Collins engaged in the business of a druggist in a house in Main street in the rear of the present Collins store, and did business there until 1894. He then transferred his business to a store in the Dixon house, where he remained for ten years, after which he located in the store in Main street now conducted by his son, Louis H. Collins, and remained there until his retirement from business about four years ago. In 1909 the business was incorporated as The Albert B. Collins Drug company, with Albert B. Collins as president, and continued as such for four years.

Mr. Collins became a member of the state board of pharmacy in 1899 and continued on the board until his retirement from business. Since 1882 he was a member of the American Pharmaceutical association and a trustee of the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy from 1904 to 1909. He was a druggist for 32 years. Mr. Collins was the last of the family of Amos and Sarah Collins. He had three brothers, James M., who was a grocer and life insurance agent, died January 27, 1897; Amos B., a physician, and Charles B., a druggist, who died December 15, 1902.

Mr. Collins leaves his wife, who was Miss Harriet Porter of Westerly; a son, Louis Burlingame, and a daughter, Sarah Porter Collins.

Mr. Collins was for many years a member of the First Baptist church, and left that church to affiliate with Calvary Baptist church. He was a member of Franklin lodge of Masons, of Palmer chapter and Narragansett commandery, Knights Templar.
